Steve Beckendorf is a professor emeritus at UC Berkeley's Molecular and Cell Biology Department. He is the president of the Odontoglossum Alliance and is also an AOS certified judge. Steve spends his retirement traveling the world and has written extensively about his main passion, Odontoglossums, in both 'Orchids' the American Orchid Society magazine and 'Orchid Digest' the magazine for The Orchid Digest Corporation. These are two outstanding orchid organizations which our new members should consider joining. (www.aos.org and www.orchiddigest.com) Last summer Steve and other notable odontoglossum advocates spoke at the Orchid Digest's Summer Speaker series, tackling the tricky taxonomic changes within that alliance. But this month Steve will discuss the intriguing Formosae dendrobiums, a group that used to be called nigrohirsute dendrobiums because of the black hairs on their stems. These dendrobiums are attractive, unusual and hardy. I'm sure everyone of us is interested in finding out more about orchids that can deal with our daily abuse.

Steve Beckendorf will provide the plant table.

President's Message

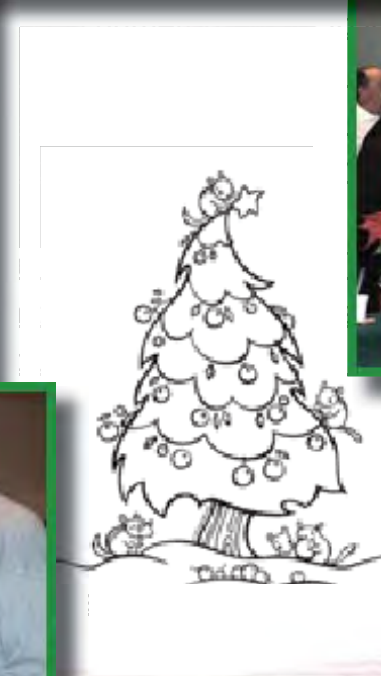

by George McRae

Happy New Year to all of you! It's an honor to accept your confidence in me as your 2012 President! First off, we have a wonderful program for you all this month with one our own, Steve Beckendorf as our speaker and plant table provider. I hope you will join us at the speaker's dinner before the meeting, where you can get to know Steve even more. January is always the month of the new and the resolved. This year my solemn resolution is to actually take care of my plants and give them what they deserve, which in my case is food! Unlike our VP who openly confesses to not watering her plants, my sin is not feeding. Not only do I have a collection of orchids, I also have a wonderful collection of unopened and unused fertilizers. Orchids have moods and cycles. Part of the love I have for them is observing these cycles. Marking the calendar with them. Many of my Pleurothalids bloom in winter, and it's a lovely start to the year. In California, Calypso bulbosa will be just starting to wake up around now. They are in full bloom, depending on conditions, as early as Presidents Day. Coral roots will also be poking up in the forests of Northern Cal. As Martha says, it's a good thing. As a final note: this is YOUR society. Its success is up to you. We'll be forming some committees to cover the variety of activities and events we put on. I encourage all of you to participate, whether it's a regular meeting committee like refreshments and set-up or the picnic, or annual show, or the Christmas Party (which this year was wonderful!) Many societies languish because the Board gets saddled with the lion's share of the work. Other societies spread out the burden, which we do reasonably well, but I want everyone to feel that they are a part of this society, and to feel ownership in it! Here's to a fabulous 2012.

Cattleya coccinea fma. aurea 'Grass Valley',

Please note that the ever-changing genus 'Sophronitis' is now subsumed into 'Cattleya'. And - for you taxonomy freaks - the variety 'aurea' is listed as forma until taxonomically published as a 'variety'. How ya like them apples?

A lot of folks asked for Ken Cook's cake recipe.
He has been kind enough
to share it.

Ken Cook's Sour Cream Chocolate Cake

*2 c. flour
2 c. sugar
½ tsp. baking powder
1 ¼ tsp baking soda
1 tsp salt
1 c. water
¾ c. sour cream
¼ c. butter, softened
1 tsp. vanilla
2 eggs
1 c. unsweetened Hershey's Special Dark Cocoa*

Preheat oven to 350. Measure all ingredients into a large bowl and beat for ½ minute at low speed. Beat for 3 minutes at highest speed. Pour into greased, floured cake pans. Bake for 20 -30 minutes, testing with a toothpick.

Frosting:

*½ c. butter melted
1 c. unsweetened Hershey's Special Dark Cocoa
4 c. powdered sugar, sifted
1 c. sour cream
2 tsp. vanilla*

Put all ingredients in a food processor equipped with a steel blade a process until smooth, scraping down sides of bowl.

Note: It is worth the search to find Hershey's Special Dark Cocoa. It truly pushes this recipe over the top!
